Welcome to the Alaska Grown Source Book – your resource for local food and farm products. We have listed all the statewide farm and ranch operations and farm service businesses that have provided their information.

The Alaska Grown Source Book provides information about statewide resources and contacts relevant to Alaska agriculture. Throughout the book listings are divided by regions first, then alphabetically. Following some informative pages you will find a list of statewide Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) and U-Pick businesses, followed by a list of farmers’ markets. The bulk of the book is dedicated to individual farm listings. At the end you will find a list of businesses providing support to Alaska farms. An index of individual farm listings concludes this publication.

We hope you enjoy the Alaska Grown Source Book and find this directory to be useful. We encourage you to become an active Alaska Grown buyer by looking for the Alaska Grown logo in grocery stores, at farmers’ markets, and in your favorite restaurants.

Dear Fellow Alaskans,

Our local businesses provide excellent products and resources to better our lives – from landscaping our yards using locally grown plants, eating fresh and local foods, or providing high-quality hay for our livestock. Locally grown products are plentiful and support Alaskan communities and economics.

The Alaska Grown Source Book offers Alaskans a resource for locating locally grown products, as it is important to know where our food comes from and how it is grown. By looking for and purchasing products with the Alaska Grown symbol, you can support fellow Alaskans in producing more high-quality, local products.

Thank you for your commitment to support Alaskan farmers and processors by choosing “Closer, Fresher, Better...Buy Alaska Grown!”

Best regards,

Sean Parnell
Governor

Community Supported Agriculture (CSA)

What is a CSA?

Community Supported Agriculture is a partnership between a local farm and a community of “shareholder” consumers. It is a relationship of mutual support and commitment in which a consumer purchases a “share” of what the farm produces during a growing season and then receives weekly deliveries of whatever is ready for harvest each week. The arrangement guarantees the farmer financial support when it is most needed early in the growing season and in return offers members a wide variety of locally seasonal foods harvested at their peak of freshness, ripeness, flavor, and vitamin and mineral content. Ultimately, CSAs create what is being termed “agriculture-supported communities” where small local farms can stay afloat and help to create healthier and more sustainable communities for all. Look for the icon to the right to see if a farm participates in CSAs.

U-Pick Farms

What is a U-Pick?

A U-pick or pick-your-own farm is a type of farm where customers are allowed to harvest their own produce. Since customers are allowed and often encouraged to eat while picking, an entry fee usually covers any produce customers may eat. Despite this, the produce at U-pick farms often cost less since the cost of hiring farmers to harvest the produce is precluded. Not all farms have the same produce so it is recommended you call for seasonal availability.

Look for the icon to the right to see if a farm participates in U-Pick.

We are a small commercial growing operation and learning center, continuously moving toward self sufficiency through earth friendly practices. Located 40 miles north of Denali National Park, nestled on 10 acres (off the grid) in an Aspen/spruce forest we have a small hand built log cabin, green house, chicken coup, and organic gardens. Our goal is to provide healthy tasty organic food to our local community, as well as, education about the benefits to self and earth that come from natural organic practices. We supply 7 locally owned restaurants, 20 families and the Tri-Valley School district with fresh produce. We offer full season internships providing an education in commercial growing and off the grid living.
